INSIDE THE TORPEDO BOAT.

A CO-LABORTR'S STORY OF HOLLAND'S BONDERFUL INFENTIONS.

Staying thirty Feet Under Water for More than an Hou- Without a Fresh Supply of Air and Walking Cut of the Bottom of his Bost on the River Red-An Odd Musket. Mr. William D. Diekey, draughtsman and engineer for the firm of Handren & Robins of alland, the inventor of the mysterious torpedo ram, for many years. Mr. Dickey is a od has held a responsible position in the firm for many years. He is a man of quiet, method-real ways and of thoughtful speech.

"I first met John P. Ho'land," said he last evening, "in 1876, when he came to our shops with some ideas for a submarine boat. He was a quiet, good-nature I gentleman, with a clever way of talking and an abundance of ideas, but we did not know then what a really tracing the exporters of the machines. we had been with him very long, however, and the opinion I formed of him then has been gradually strengthened until now. I believe him to be a man of remarkable ability. He is elever in many ways, but is way ahead on the subject of submarine navigation. His so-called tailures have really been successes, for he has the faculty of throwing aside whatever he has used and bending everything to his deminant blee. He has had a remarkable experience, for I have seen him time and again when he had hardly enough money to pay his fare in from Newark, while he was dispensing thousands of dollars in ready money for his inventions. He came to us in '76 with this idea for a boat, I drew the designs, plans, and working drawings for the boat from his directions, and practically, by his instruction, utilized his immense mathematical knowledge. The boat was to be mate as small as possible. He was a small man, and we decided to build it for him, so he eronched down by a fence, and we drew a chalk line around him to measure his size. Then we built a riveted iron boat with nearly square body and conical ends about 1d feet long, 4 feet 6 inches wide, and 4 feet deep. In this beat, which was to stand a pressure of 300 pounds to the square inch. Holand was to crouch and make his way under the

and was to erough and make his way under the water. I don't think it was intended for a terpeto boat. It had a Braton petroleum motor, and was moved by a serse propeller. He was very anxious to get down to the wreck of the Azer, where there was considerable treasure buried. Well, sir, we built the boat for him, and were paid cash for it. The whole thing when completed cost about $10,000."

"Where did the money come from?"

"A man named Breslin furnished it."

"John J. Breslin, the Fenian sairmisher?"

"John J. Breslin was the name. Well, Holland took the boat, got in her, went down in her and came up in her, demonstrated his theory, and proved the practicability of his invention."

"What is the particular invention?"

"It is his mode of purifying the air so that it can be breathed over and over again. Do you appreciate this? Any one can lock himself up in an dirtight shollwith a couple of steaming engines, but he'll stifle before he can collect his thoughts. John P. Holland has discovered a way of purifying the air so he can breathe it over and over again."

"What became of the craft?"

o wonderfully. When divers descend they have a compared to the pressure of the water as hey descend. This causes a loss of sime that is very valuable. The boat drops sump to the bottom and shoots around till she had been a considered to the control of the contr one ructed a reflecting telescope that in field upon by astronomers all over He slivered the eight-inch mirror as he couldn't find any one else to do perhaps his most remarkable in-in one sense was the musket in one sense was the model of while working on his boat an enthusiast by men who can be an enthusiast by men of well le in called an enthusiast by men who can't udge of his work, but is really a man of well-salanced mind. This musket created a good leal of amusement, but it would be a good hing for use in rough warfare. Holland realened that a small body of troops was much more effective behind earthen breast-forks than a large body in the upen, so he constructed a musket with a stock that would serve as a sick or a spade by a few quick changes and truned u lot of workmen in the yard. They were directly a stock and die out a french or throw up an emplangment and then drop under protection and fre at the enemy. It caused lats of tun, but for rough and tunble ambush warfare would make rood showing."

Are you would not the tornedo ram again?"
I am. Holland has tromised to take me for the sea with him in a day or two, and I very anxious to go, for I believethoroughly he best, and wish to see him successful in readulation. O'Donovan Rossa said yesterday in an

Mr. O'Donovan Rossa said vesterday in an interview relating to the informal machines:

"The funny part of the whole think has not ret dawned upon the people. The inshis history of the informal machines is this: An interview of the informal machines is this: An interview of the informal machines is this: An interview of the informal machines built if an expense of about $40 each, paged away in a barrel, and shipped to England. Then he went to the first is tonsul and informed him that shipments of informal machines had been made and offered to tell when and where, if the Government would pay him $10,000. This the Consul-General promised, and then he was told of the local term promised, and then he was told of the local term of destination of the barrels. They were seed. The informer was given his money, and he resimply turned it over to the fund, and it will be used in the cause of Ireland. The police and the Consul were both taken in, and they both feel sore over it."

WASHINGTON, July 29 .- The bulletins of the day are barren, but they furnish all of the information that can be obtained of the President's condition. The physicians not only re-fuse to add to their official announcements, but the sick-room attendants are dumb. It is learned from the bulletins that this morning the temperature and respiration were normal and the pulse 92. This shows that the high fever of last night had been reduced. The noon bulletin noted an acceleration of the pulse and respiration, without change in the temperature. The discharges were said to be satisfactory.

The night builtin revealed an increase in

FINAL PASSAGE OF THE LAND BILL IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Fourteen Votes Cast Against it-The Bill Rend for the Pirst Time in the House of Lords-The Fighting in Afghanistan. LONDON, July 29 .- In the House of Com-

nons to-day the Right Hon. William H. Smith (Liberal Conservative), on the motion for a third reading of the Land bill, moved the recommittal of the bill in order to have a clause inserted providing for the examination and revision, after six years, of the duties and constitution of the Land Court in a manner which will obviate the necessity for reopening the subject in Parliament. The Government opposed the motion because of the lack of time, and it was defeated without a division. Lord Randolph Churchill, in an extravagant speech, then moved his resolution, that the bill, being the result of revolutionary agitation, encourages the repudiation of contracts, is opposed to individual liberty, is calculated to diminish the security of property and prosperity in Ireland, and to endanger her union with Great Britain.
Mr. Gladstone ridiculed Lord Churchill, and justified the bill. He said it would be unbecom-

Boston, July 29 .- About three weeks ago, Fred Crowell of 32 Prospect street, Cambridgeport, while hunting with a companion near Livermore, Me., was accidentally shot in the right breast. The two hunters were sitting at the foot of a tree, resting after a long tramp, and had placed their guns on the ground in front of them. Crowell saw a crow flying overhead, and called upon his companion to watch him bring the bird down. Crowell's weapon was a large musket loaded with buckshot, and was lying on the ground, muzzle to-ward him, Catching the gun by the barrel ward him. Catching the gun by the barrel he drew it up, and the hammer catching on some obstruction, was let down on the cap with force enough to discharge the piece. The whole charge of buckshot struck Crowell in the right breast, passing completely through his body and entering the tree behind him. A large, gaping wound was made, and the upper part of the right lung was apparently torn away. The young man was taken to the house of his friends in Livermore, and his wound dressed hurriedly to stop the flow of blood until the arrival of Dr. Alonzo Garcelon, ex-Governor of Maine, who was summoned. Dr. Garcelon, in examining the wound, passed the fingers of both hands into the opening from each side until they met in the centre, and, in spite of the almost hopeless nature of the case, has brought Crowell through to the present time, with fair prospects of final recovery. The wound is dressed daily by pressing a camel's hair brush through, and is kept in a healthy condition by applications made in this way.

SUN'S REPORTERS.

The Elevated Roads Paying Up-A Check for 8185,000 Handed in and Accepted for Back Taxes on the New York Company. Yesterday the receivers of the Manhattan Railway Company tendered to the Clerk of Arrears a check for about $185,000, on account of taxes levied upon the structure of the New York Elevated Railway Company. Under the advice of the Corporation Counsel the money was received by the Clerk of Arrears, and a receipt was given in the following form: Received from Mesers. John F. Dillon and A. L. Hopkins, receivers of the Manhattan Bailway Company, theck upon the Shoe and Leather Bank for $186,187.41. The same is stated by the receivers to be tendered to me on account of taxes assessed in the years 1878 and 1880 upon the real eatate or real property of the New York Elevated Railroad Company.

The whole amount of the taxes due from all the companies is about one million dollars. The above sum is about sixty per cent, of the amount levied upon the structure of the New York Company.

It has been suggested that the receivers did not suppose the check would be taken. Under the advice of the Corporation Counsel it was taken, and a receipt on account given.
